Hello Everyone,

The X-Labs website is currently undergoing some improvements, so if things on the site seem weird or different over the next week or two it is all normal. I am currently working on improving the content and layout of the site. The bad spam problem should now be over due to the addition of the re-captcha I added in the account creation form.

It would be great if everyone could take a look at the updated content via the links on the left side of the page. I will be adding more content mainly to the X4 UAV page. Please let me know if any X-Labs members are interested in writing content.

We are making great progress as a club, lets keep up the good work!

Thanks,

Coyt Barringer
